

CIVITAN CLUB HAS 43 MEMBERS

Will Shepherd, Frank Carden and O. B. Andrews Deliver Addresses Friday.

JUDGE BACHMAN HONORED

The Civitan club, Chattanooga's newly organized civic enterprise, held its first meeting Friday at noon at the English Tea room since its formation a week ago. Appointment of various necessary committees was announced by President O. B. Andrews and a talk on "Good Citizenship" by Frank S. Carden also featured. Will Shepherd, chairman of the alarm clock committee, made the keynote address, telling of the aims of the Civitan club and what it hopes to accomplish during the ensuing year.

It was reported that forty-three members now belong to the club, leaving room for seven more, as the club is limited to fifty members. It was agreed that the entire membership would not be limited to professional men alone, but an invitation be extended to working men of the city to join the club. The aim of the club is good citizenship and a closer relation between workers and employers.

C. W. Shropshire, international president of Civitan clubs, will visit Chattanooga at an early date, it was announced by the president.

In his address on citizenship Frank Carden classified citizens in three classes, namely, few good citizens, more made citizens, and a greater number of indifferent citizens. The latter, he declared, should be the means of good citizens expressing themselves in favor of better government, and added that disfranchisement should await any voter who allowed his vote to be bought by dishonest politicians.

Nathan L. Bachman, associate judge of the state supreme court, was elected an honorary member of the organization.

A list of the members of the organization and their classification follows:

NAVAL TRAINING STATION TURNS OUT 100 DAILY

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 20.—(A. P.)—Nearly 100 men are being graduated from the naval training station at Great Lakes Naval Training station from what naval officers describe as the biggest trade school in the world.

The school is devoted exclusively to the training of aviation mechanics and at the present time 3,225 students are taking the courses, which range in length from six to thirty-six weeks. More than 1,000 men have graduated since the school was established slightly more than a year ago and another 1,000 will complete their work by November. Lieut.-Commander E. B. Wilson, commandant at the school, says all of the 5,000 men provided for in the naval aviation act will be graduates of the school within another year.

The cost of turning out the first 1,000 graduates was $7,000, making the average cost of producing trained aerial mechanics $7 each. The low cost was due to the fact that the students produce nothing in their studies to be wasted. Instead, the frequently useless examples they work on parts actually needed for repairs and construction of new airplanes.

A number of planes, ranging from small land flyers to huge seaplanes, only a step smaller than the famous "N-1" type, have been completed. The school is valued at between $20,000,000 and $30,000,000 but all the tools and equipment are salvaged materials which would otherwise have been sold at a great loss after the war. Part of the equipment is several million dollars worth of partly finished airplane motors and parts, which were purchased from the manufacturers after the armistice as junk at a flat cost of 27 cents a pound. The students are completing the parts and building machines from them.

Lieut.-Commander Wilson started the school from the bottom a year ago. As the first step the navy officer wrote all the text books to be used.

No flying is done, but the best men from each class are eligible later to attend a school for enlisted pilots. Each graduate of the mechanics school receives a certificate, while gold, silver and bronze medals are awarded to the honor men. The 3,225 students now here include 450 marines.

Chicago.—(U. S. S.)—Girls, here's your chance! Eight soldiers at Camp Eagle Pass, Texas, have written the police chief of Chicago asking for material help in finding as many Illinois girls desirous of marrying. They are soon to be discharged from service. "I've got the challenge and now it's up to the girls," says the chief.

LAWYERS SURPRISED AT REDUCTION OF VERDICT

Attorneys Do Not Believe Verdict of $25,000 in McQuiddy Case Excessive.

A great deal of comment is being caused among local attorneys by the recent opinion of the court of civil appeals in reducing the verdict in the case of the Lane McQuiddy heirs against S. R. Read et al. from $25,000 to $15,000. The surprise at the verdict is occasioned by the fact that the higher court affirmed the verdict of the lower court in its decision as to the merits of the case and then gave as its only reason for reversal the fact that the verdict was excessive. The court did not attempt to say there was or had been the slightest evidence of contributory negligence on the part of Mr. McQuiddy, but simply affirmed the facts in the case and then reduced the verdict to $15,000.

Local lawyers, in discussing the case Friday, said that the court of appeals had reduced the verdict in almost every case they had tried, and in many had done so without giving the cause. In fact, one lawyer stated that Mr. McQuiddy, who was killed while a guest at the Read house, was a young man of exemplary qualities, and that if a life of this sort was not worth $25,000, then the courts could not be expected to value any one's life at its real worth.

Several cases where the court of appeals had reduced the verdicts were cited by lawyers discussing the case. One attorney stated that $25,000 was not an excessive amount for the life of any young man who had a bright future. A case was recalled which occurred several years ago at New Market, in which a railroad company settled for the killing of a man by paying the sum of $25,000 without even going into court with it.

The McQuiddy case goes to the supreme court.

PREACHER INSISTS ON HIS BEING ARRESTED

Rev. O. W. Alexander has returned to his home in Louisville, after paying all expenses of having himself arrested, extradited and brought before an accused in Chattanooga for whom he had borrowed money, a Louisville newspaper article states.

Alexander, according to the article, took with him from this city letters from the police judge before whom he was notified to appear, from witnesses named in a warrant against him, and other persons from his old home in Chattanooga, all possible preparation for the injustice done.

Immediately on being notified that he was wanted here, Alexander is said to have waived extradition, insisting on paying the expenses of a local officer, together with his own expenses. It is explained that Alexander had borrowed money on notes from a bank here to his home in Louisville, and was waiting them to endorse a note with him. Two months ago he went to Louisville. One of his friends, the Louisville story sets forth, became alarmed before the note fell due and swore out a warrant in the police court.

"I've learned a lesson in gratitude," Alexander is quoted as saying. "I paid the note before it fell due, and most of the men before me helped out of debt have repaid me. The Louisville detective and police certainly did everything they could to make my position as little humiliating as possible, and the Tennessee officers also."

A BILIOUS ATTACK

When you have a bilious attack your liver fails to perform its functions. You become constipated. The food you eat ferments in your stomach instead of digesting. This inflames the stomach and causes nausea, vomiting and a terrible headache. Take three of Chamberlain's Tablets. They will tone up your liver, clean out your stomach and you will soon be as well as ever. They only cost a quarter.—(Adv.)

KISS AND MAKE UP

Rome.—(U. S. S.)—The world's longest duel has just been fought here between Signor Giovanni Pavino and Signor Domenico Durante, who quarreled in a fashionable restaurant. The duel began at 6:30 in the morning and raged furiously under a blazing sun until noon with neither swordsman able to break his foe's defense. At noon they quit because they were hungry and thirsty, kissed each other and then arm in arm adjourned to a neighboring cafe.

LOW BUILDINGS ARE MORE PROFITABLE

Minneapolis, Minn.—Low buildings erected on expensive lots are more profitable than skyscrapers towering into the air, in the opinion of various members of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers expressed at their annual convention here. This is contradictory to the generally accepted theory of realty men.

Reading a paper at one of the sessions on "Analysis of the Comparative Investment Value of Office Buildings of Various Heights," Edwin S. Jewell, of Omaha, an advocate of the low building theory, said that since land values are enhanced by the increase in population in a section and not by the size of buildings on it, structures under ten stories in height were more profitable in that a saving would be made on the tremendous cost of foundation and enormous elevator equipment.

"If a building erected a six to eight-story building in a part of the city that is the business section," Mr. Jewell said, "the business section shifts in a decade or two, the structure can readily be used for a factory, warehouse or other purposes. It is still a marketable building. The same is not true of the skyscraper."

Then builders begin to erect low buildings, Mr. Jewell asserted, a considerable amount of money now being used for building foundations and sub-basements can be put into other buildings. The money put into elevators, heavy framework and other incidentals necessary to the erection of a skyscraper would pay for a good, practical office building four to six stories high covering the same piece of ground.

Frank L. Smith, chairman of the operating experience committee of the building owners' and managers' association, also asserted that the low office building plan would spread the business districts of cities over wider areas and raise land values, enabling cities to raise more revenue for schools and other public improvements.

"The low building plan," he said, "would prevent congestion, promote safety and good health and by forcing the spreading of the business district over a wider area, provide more stores, which would result in greater competition and lower prices to the buying public."

A low building, Mr. Jewell asserted, is cheaper than a tall building of the same quality because cement can be used instead of steel.

Mr. Jewell stated he had made a study of revenues from a large number of office buildings in more than fifty cities adding that the receipts and expenditures from 143 buildings to 1919 showed an average income of about $1.41 per square foot, whereas it would require $1.41 per square foot to make the investment realize 6 per cent.

VIENNESE SMILE DESPITE SAD PLIGHT

Vienna.—(U. S. S.)—The sad plight of Vienna has often been referred to by newspaper correspondents or explained in appeals for starving children or other sufferers.

There is little outward evidence of the tragedy. The stranger visiting the erstwhile gay and light-hearted capital on the ruins of the city is not likely to believe that the facts have been grossly exaggerated. But the stranger's Vienna is not the Vienna of the "Viennese."

For the bulk of the population, and more particularly for the middle classes, the conditions of life have become impossible. The struggle between starvation and labor.

When they have eaten up their capital and sold their household goods they have to choose between slow starvation and voluntary death. There are scores of suicides every week.

The denigration of Austrian currency value has been a bitter blow to the people of living have not brought about anything like a corresponding increase in earnings.

A brilliant scientist, a professor of astronomy, has to give lessons in languages and mathematics at private schools at the rate of five kronen an hour—little over three cents in English money.

A small government official would have to spend far more than a year's income to buy a ready-made lounge suit and about a month's income for a pair of cotton pajamas.

To cross from the door those who have the necessary business ability are forced to resort to illicit trading. Not a slug of cocaine or opium is not an ounce of tobacco is to be had at the numerous licensed tobacconists' home. But there is not a cafe or restaurant where you cannot buy all the services you require—by paying far more than the legally fixed prices.

Milk is absolutely unobtainable, except in very small quantities for the use of children. And sugar is almost as scarce, although Austria is a sugar-producing country.

Her money having become worthless, she has to pay in kind for her purchases and thus all her sugar goes abroad.

For the unfortunate Viennese there is no help and no escape. They cannot emigrate; they cannot even go to their own country districts, as the local authorities of the Alpine provinces have set up barriers against them to save their own scant food supplies.

The Austria that has emerged from the disastrous war has neither coal, nor cereals, nor any kind of food of any kind to nourish her own population. Her credit stands so low that she cannot borrow from abroad.

She is surrounded on three sides by hostile races. All attempts to relieve her distress can only be temporary measures. A country of 6,600,000 inhabitants cannot nourish a capital of 2,000,000 inhabitants. And that is why Vienna is doomed.

The misery is indescribable even now. What will it be in winter, when the terror of frost and snow and ice is added to the constant threat of starvation?

The marvel is that the Viennese, proverbially cheerful and light-hearted, will rarely be found to grumble or whine. They carry on as best they can.

They laugh and joke about their troubles. And they face the end with a smile.

BRIDGE WASHED AWAY

Liverly, Ga., Aug. 20.—(Special.)—The temporary bridge across the Apalachicola creek on the Dixie highway between Summerville and Rome, was swept away by the flooded stream a few days ago, which necessitated travel between the two points to take a longer detour. The temporary bridge was constructed several days ago, when the wooden bridge was destroyed by fire. The county authorities have this week let the contract for the erection of a new cement bridge across the creek, and a temporary bridge will probably be built so that traffic may be resumed.
